

September 29, 2002

Peter Sklar
153 Webster Avenue
Harrison, New York 10528

Dear Peter:

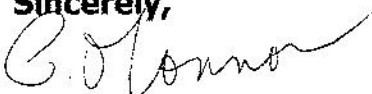

It seems impossible that it is already a month past this year's workshop. The anticipation, planning, and anxiety involved in the preparation heightened as each month passed. We were concerned, excited, and happy for Kevin to experience the workshop. Now, here we are, talking about next year.

You stated that we could expect our children to return from the workshop with more self confidence and an increased ability to focus. That is exactly what we saw in Kevin immediately upon meeting him in New York. That is also what we have continued to see as the weeks have passed. He is more aware of what he is eating and the effects of certain foods on his thinking and behavior. He shows more insight in his school environment, and exhibits an increased awareness of the people around him.

He continues to state: "I can't wait to go back". When your letter inviting him back arrived, we were still somewhat overwhelmed from the whole experience. However, after talking it over as a family, we have decided that we want Kevin to return to the workshop next summer.

Thank you for offering Kevin this opportunity.

Sincerely,

Pat & Peggy O'Connor