Hello Peter. Thank you for inviting Andrea to your workshop. She came home very excited about everything, along with a new appreciation for her mom and dad, her own bed, and the life she lives in California. She also came home with a new confidence about her career choice and is beginning to see the many ways she can get herself to New York, other than obtaining a scholarship to NYU. (She will be applying in 2007.) Best of all, she is making efforts to change her eating habits. Flax seed, which she tried before the workshop, was on the menu this morning along with Organic Amaranth Flakes and soy milk. Thank you for exposing her to a good diet. We eat lots of vegies, fruit, and chicken, but we have never eaten an organic diet. I appologize for taking so long to write. We went on a family vacation after Andrea arrived home from New York and she has been busy preparing an audition for the Best of Broadway here in Sacramento. She also started class at Sierra College for academic enrichment, continues teaching and taking classes at Broadway Academy, and has done some volunteer work as well. She wants me to tell you that a personal e-mail will come from her soon. We received your letter are interested in doing a mini-workshop; however, I need to discuss our schedule and finances with my husband before we can commit. Thanks again Peter. Karen Bellato.
